NEW GLOVES AND HANDBAGS

Accessories That Match is One of the Latest Fashions: Silk and Leather Used.

The shops show most interesting changes in gloves. Real innovations, not just a different cut or a different material.

For one thing, there are gloves and handbags to match. They are made of silk and leather so far as the bags go, and of leather with fancy stitching, and sometimes silk facings so far as the gloves go.

For instance, there is one set, "The bag is of black suede with red embroidery, set in a car of ivory frame. The gloves are of black dressed kid, with deep knitted cuffs. Finest silk red kid—this and the embroidery are in a sort of henna shade."

And there is another set consisting of a bag of gray watered silk embroidered with black. The gloves of black show gray silk facings in the cuffs and gray stitching.

And a set of beige suede gloves stitched with black and faced with black, in the deep knitted cuffs has a bag of beige silk with black suede cuffs and a black framework of a composition.

For the truck that is sleeveless or nearly so, there are old-fashioned mitts. Silk lace ones, that come down over the knuckles and up toward the elbow, in black and white, gray and beige. These are lovely on the bare arm, and serve to break the length of the bare arm that is too thin.

From France come fabric gloves of the pull-on type, showing the long wrist design in a dark or shade of the same color as the glove—brown on beige, a soft black on gray.

THE SILVER LINING

"Has anyone seen my b-b blouse?" demanded a shivering buck on one of those typically sunny Friday mornings. Nobody had—for purposes of publication, anyway.

"Has anyone seen my b-b blouse?" "Nope."

"Well," said the buck, after a moment's deliberation, "I'm afraid I've got a new warm b-b-bolt, at any rate." —American Legion Weekly.

The Smashup.

A man came into the club the other day with his face half hidden by sticking plaster.

"A motorist friend of mine has just met with a nasty accident," he explained.

"But what have you been doing?" we asked in chorus.

"Oh, I was the party accident!" —Eve (London).

Shaken Belief.

"Do you feel a sense of unworthiness in the presence of a multi-millionaire?"

"Not of unworthiness," replied the impetuous citizen. "It is more a feeling of acute depression. At no other time do I have as little faith in the old saying that virtue is its own reward."

Fire in Shoe Shop.

The Fire Department was called out at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon to a fire in the basement of the brick annex to the home of Peter Carelli in Meadow lane, where a shoe repair shop.

FANCY BEADED BANDS OF NET

Decorations Affords Marked Note in Trimmings for Some of the Popular Fall Models.

Fancy beaded net bands and large beaded fringe motifs stand out as the marked note in trimmings for the fall models.

Belts are practically nonexistent in the new lines, and are replaced by elaborate motifs and buckles, all of which have been chosen by the leading model garment makers for their fall models.

Fancy braids and fancy net bands, notably bands heavily beaded in brilliant, multi-colored beads in Roman and Egyptian designs, promise to be one of the great successes of the season. These bands are shown in such color combinations as scarlet, yellow and blue, interspersed with white on a black net ground, in shades of dark and brilliant red interspersed with black, or again in combinations of green, blue and yellow.

In buckles, marked emphasis is given to disks in composition mounted in fancy filigree frames. Many of these are in Egyptian designs and are ornamented at the center with a metal sphinx head matching the frame.

A good line of beaded georgette evening dresses is also shown, notably white georgette in crystal, or in iridescent, or in mother-of-pearl effects.

White for evening wear stands out as the dominating note for gowns and also for trimmings and accessories — Dry Goods Economist.

Surely Indefatigable Right.

Almost any child will do in a pinch. Old John Sinters of Richmond, in the days of long ago, was one of those "shutless" individuals, too trifling for words and of no value to himself or anybody else. His wife kept a tailoring board house and tolerated him about the place as a sort of safety valve for her temper and used him as an errand boy to run to the grocery. One afternoon, when it was about time to start the cooking for the evening meal, she could not find either him or the hired girl. At last she discovered them in the woodshed hugging and kissing to beat the band. The girl fled and left him to face the music alone.

"Here you are," cried his indignant wife, "mooning and spooning around with that young hussy, and me working the skin off my fingers to keep your worthless body and soul together! Now, ain't you ashamed of yourself?"

"Humph," retorted old John, "I guess a man's got a right to some privilege in his own home, ain't he?" —Indianapolis News.

Musings of a Motor Cop. I intended to hasten to justice. She did so with a posit. And said, "I had to stop because my gas had just gave out!" —Washington Star.

Fatal.

"What became of the terror of Noser's Gulch?" "He's gone." "Natural demise?" "Liver complaint." "Heh?" "Had a white liver."

Tommy Spills the Beans.

Mr. Dubbleigh—Why do you bring me so much water, Tommy? I merely asked for a drink.

Tommy—I thought you'd need more than a glassful cause sister sold you was the driest old stick she ever knew.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, DEC. 6, 1932.

NOT ALL BLAME DUE TO CHILDREN

So far as the facts have been ascertained the accident on the South Side, which resulted in the death of a young boy who was struck by an automobile
 while on his way home from school, was one of those which emphasize the dangers incident to automobile driving in the vicinity of school buildings, or other places where children congregate.

It shows that children do not realize the necessity of, or have not learned to exercise, precautions for their safety when crossing the streets. It also shows that car drivers almost invariably neglect bringing their cars under such complete control, when driving in close proximity to groups of children that, even if one suddenly starts out into the street, as in the instance in question, the car can be slowed down sufficiently to avoid striking the child with such force as to cause serious injury or death.

Every person familiar with automobiles knows that they can be driven at such a rate of speed that, if the emergency arises, they can be stopped within a very short distance, or the speed so reduced that the impact of the car against a person or object will be comparatively light or harmless. This rate of travel would appear to drivers as a small pace but it would reduce to a minimum the danger of serious injury to children who,
 as all drivers know, are liable to run in front of a car without a second's warning. Few, if any drivers, have the patience or willingness to adopt such a safety precaution when they are approaching or passing groups of children on the sidewalks.

It may be argued that it is the duty of parents to keep their children off the streets. So it is, and the effort to do so is constant on the part of most parents. It is a well-known fact, however, that parents cannot be on guard over their children while on their way to and from school. It is also a well-known fact that school children traveling in groups are almost completely oblivious to danger of every kind. This is one of the characteristics of irresponsible youth, despite all the efforts of parents and teachers to impress them with the perils of street crossing. Because this is true the safeguarding of children becomes still more the very solemn duty and obligation of persons of more mature years.

CAR SHORTAGE BETTER THAN PROFIT SHORTAGE

While the producers of coal and coke have been complaining bitterly of the shortage and irregularity in car supply, because of the restrictions placed on output, the transportation situation has been a real blessing in disguise, when viewed from the producer's standpoint.

If coal cars were available and were placed for loading each day in the number requisitioned by the operators, production would assume such proportions within a few days as to be very much in excess of the needs of consumers. Even with the car supply limited as it has been ever since the resumption of mining took place, production has already more than made up the deficiency which resulted from the exhaustion of reserve stocks during the strike.

Present consumption of bituminous coal is estimated at 9,000,000 tons a week. Production has been averaging around 11,000,000 tons. The surplus has been going into the stock piles at the plants of large consumers like the public utilities, railroads, etc. Any material increase in the rate of production would mean that very shortly
 the market would be glutted with coal

HOW TO KEEP WARM WITHOUT COAL

Suggestions for the Unfortunates With Empty Coal Bins.

and prices would take a sudden plunge downward. In that case the operator would have no alternative except to sell coal at or below the cost of production, or closing down his mines.

Irregular operation, as the result of poor car supply, means larger producing cost, because overhead expense goes on every day whether a mine is producing at its maximum or is idle.
 While any change in the direction of a larger car supply would enable mines to turn out more coal, and thereby distribute overhead charges over a greater tonnage, output, it is conceivable that the reduction in price which would follow larger offerings on the market would be very much greater than the reduction in per ton cost of production. In that event the last state of the operator would be worse than the first.

While there is considerable clamor among consumers against prevailing prices for coal, and much buying is being deferred in anticipation of a pronounced drop, it is generally compected that under present wage scales and other mining costs the limit of profitable production will be passed very early in a downward price movement.

The car shortage may be considerable inconvenience to the operators through restriction of output but, under the circumstances, it is better than a shortage of profits.

It is both natural and logical for the Methodist brethren to apply the method to their campaign for new building funds.

Henry is due to discover that there is a vast difference between making dividers and mining coal. Incidentally he may learn that the latter does not run on pneumatic tires or make 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

The proposal of the Scottsdale borough council to enact a "dry" ordinance, modeled after that in effect in Conneltsville, will doubtless prompt some critics of wet predilections to charge the Mill Town with a desire to "profit in crime."

With prize winners on its staff of correspondents no explanations are necessary to make it clear why The Courier is a prize winning newspaper.

Just Folks

THE SIDE STREET.

Oh, I've been up and down the town,
 I've walked with men of high reputation,
 I've tramped the busy thoroughfares
 where many a fortune's made, I've swung my eager eye along and gazed with the motley throng And stopped at wonder windows where the riches are displayed.

I know the thrills the stranger's seek,
 I've lived with them week after week,
 I've heard men utter Oh's and Ah's at sights grown commonplace,
 But I go past the buildings tall and never notice them at all.
 Go past the great stone giants and I never turn my face.

But there's a spreading maple tree one always gets a smile from me,
 And there's one street in all the town
 the stranger's never find.
 A little street, cut short and west, where kindly folk come home to rest,
 A gentle, modest thoroughfare, with friendly houses lined.

There's nothing there to stretch the eyes of visitors in street surprise, No marvel wrought in steel and stone at which a man would stare, It's just a quiet, gentle street, where children race on flying feet,
 But it's the street I love the best—
 my little home is there.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

For That Ridny Day

When my children are restless, I let them get a bag of roasted peanuts and make peanut animals. They pick out an odd-shaped peanut, paint ink features on it, and paste on a paper tail or wings. Soon they have a whole menagerie of the quaint animals, and they are quiet and contented. (Copyright, 1932, Associated Editors.)

This morning the record was 1.80 feet. The stream was not expected to reach a higher mark unless there is more rain. The forecast today indicates there is a possibility of this, or more show.

DIFFERING VIEWS OF RAINBOW

Declaration Made That No Two Persons Can See the Same Display in the Same Way.

Misconceptions concerning the rainbow are many, according to Prof. W. J. Humphreys, Ph. D., of Franklin Institute, Philadelphia. Close observations have shown that not even the colors are always the same. Neither is the band of any color of constant angular width, nor is the total breadth of the several colors uniform. But perhaps the most interesting feature which Professor Humphreys brings out is the fact that no two persons see the same rainbow; there are as many rainbows as there are persons looking at them, it seems.

Theory teaches and ordinary experience shows as the observer remains stationary or moves, so also, other things being equal, does his rainbow. If, then, two observers in initially close together should move in opposite directions, each would find his rainbow responding in the same angle as his shadow, and presently the two positions, and, therefore, the identity of the two bows, would become unquestionably different, from which it follows that, as the eyes of the two observers must always be separated by a greater or less distance, their bows must also be correspondingly separated and different positions are produced by different raindrops.

In short, since the rainbow is a special distribution of colors (produced in a particular way) with reference to a definite point—the eye of the observer—and as no single distribution (other than uniform and infinite) can be the same for two separate points, it follows that two observers cannot see the same rainbow.—Reynolds Sunday Herald.

The BLIND MAN'S EYES

BY WILLIAM MACHARG-EDWIN BALMER

Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

COPYRIGHT BY LITTLE, BROWN, AND COMPANY

"What do you mean by that question?" he asked.

"I mean that—however innocent or guilty you may be—the chance of your being at Mr. Warden's the night he was killed—you'll have a hard time proving that you did not wait and watch and take this train because Basil Santoline had taken it; and that you were not following him. Do you deny it?"

"Eaton was silent.

"Connelly, bringing the paper in his hand nearer to the window again glanced down once more at the statement Eaton had made. 'I asked you who you knew in Chicago,' he said. 'And you answered 'No one.' That was your reply, was it not?'

"You know no one in Chicago?" "No one," Eaton repeated. "And certainly no one there knows you well enough to follow your movements in relation to Mr. Santoline. That's a necessary assumption from the fact that you know no one at all there."

"The conductor pulled a telegram from his pocket and handed it to Avery, who, evidently having already seen it, passed it on to Harriet Santoline. She took it, staring at it mechanically and vacantly; then suddenly she shrieked, and the yellow paper which she had read slipped from her hand and fluttered to the floor. Connelly stepped and picked it up and handed it toward Eaton.

"This is yours," he said. Eaton had sensed already what the nature of the message must be, though as the conductor held it out to him he could read only his name at the top of the sheet and did not know yet what the actual wording was below. Acceptance of it must mean arrest, indictment for the crime against Basil Santoline, and whether or not he later was acquitted, must destroy him; but denial of the message now would be hopeless.

"It is yours, isn't it?" Connelly asked. "Yes, it's mine," Eaton admitted; and to make his acceptance definite, he took the paper from Connelly. As he looked down at it, he read: 'He is on your train under the name of Dorn.'

The message was not signed. Connelly touched him on the shoulder. "Come with me, Mr. Eaton." Eaton got up slowly and mechanically followed the conductor. At the door he halted and looked back. Harriet Santoline was not looking; her face was covered with her hands. Eaton hesitated; then he went on. Connelly threw open the door of the compartment next to the washroom and corresponding to the drawing room at the other end of the car, but smaller.

"You'll do well enough in here." He closed the door upon Eaton and locked it. As Eaton stood staring at the door, he could hear through the metal partition of the washroom the nervous, almost hysterical weeping of an overstrained girl. The thing was done; in so far as the authorities on the train were concerned, it was known that he was the man who had had the appointment with Gabriel Warden and had disappeared; and in so far as the train officials could act, he was accused and confined for the attack upon Basil Santoline. But beside being overwhelmed with the horror of this position, the manner in which he had been accused had roused him to helpless anger, to rage at his accusers which still increased as he heard the sounds on the other side of the partition, where Avery was now trying to silence Harriet Santoline and lead her away.

CHAPTER IX

The Blind Man's Eyes. At noon Connelly came to his door, and behind Connelly, Eaton saw Harriet Santoline and Avery. Eaton jumped up, and as he saw the girl's pale face, the color left his own. "Miss Santoline has asked to speak to you," Connelly announced; and he admitted Harriet Santoline and Avery, and himself remaining outside in the aisle, closed the door upon them.

"How is your father?" Eaton asked the girl. "He seems just the same; at least, I can't see any change, Mr. Eaton." "Can Doctor Sinclair see any difference?" Eaton asked. "Doctor Sinclair will not commit himself except to say that so far as he can tell, the indications are favorable. He seems to think—'The girl choked; but when she went on, her blue eyes were very bright and her lips did not tremble.' Doctor Sinclair seems to think, Mr. Eaton, that Father was found just in time and that whatever chance he has for recovery came from you. Sometimes Father had trouble in the morning, so far as sleep lay late in the morning, so far as Mr. Avery would have left him undisturbed until noon. Doctor Sinclair says that if he had been left as long as that, he would have had no chance at all for life."

"He'll have a chance, then, now?" "Yes; but we don't know how much I—I wanted you to know, Mr. Eaton that I recognize—that the chance Father may have come through you and that I'm trying to think of you as the one who gave him the chance."

The words blood flooded Eaton's face, and he bowed his head. She then was not wholly hostile to him; she had not been completely convinced by Avery.

Her eyes rested upon Eaton steadily.

to her, a flush had come to her cheeks and faded away and come again and again with her impulses as he spoke.

"If you didn't do it, why don't you help us?" she cried. "Help you?" "Yes; tell us who you are and what you are doing? Why did you take the train because Father was on it, if you didn't mean any harm to him? Why don't you tell us where you are going or where you have been or what you have been doing? Why can't you give the name of anybody you know or tell us of anyone who knows about you?"

"I might ask you in return," Eaton said, "why you thought it worth while, Miss Santoline, to ask so much about myself when you first met me and before any of this had happened? Why were you curious about me?" "My father asked me to find out about you."

Harriet had reddened under Eaton's gaze. "You understand, Mr. Eaton, I was—was entirely impersonal with me. My father, being blind, is obliged to use the eyes of others—mine, for one; and he has Mr. Avery. He calls upon his eyes, sometimes; and it was only—only because I had been commissioned to find out about you that I was obliged to show so much curiosity."

Harriet arose and Eaton got up as she did and stood as she went toward the door. Avery had reached the door, holding it open for her to go out. Suddenly Eaton tore the handle from Avery's grasp, slammed the door shut upon him and braced his foot against it. "Miss Santoline," he pleaded, his voice hoarse with his emotion, "for God's sake, make them think what they are doing before they make a public accusation against me—before they charge me with this to others not on this train! It will not be merely accusation they make against me—it will be my sentence! I shall be sentenced before I am tried—condemned without a chance to defend myself! That is the reason I could not come forward after the murder of Mr. Warden. I could not have helped him—or aided in the pursuit of his enemies—if I had appeared, I merely would have been destroyed myself! The only thing I could hope to accomplish has been in following my present course which I swear to you, has no connection with the attack upon your father. What Mr. Avery and Connelly are planning to do to me, they cannot undo. They will merely complete the outrage and injustice already done me—of which Mr. Warden spoke to his wife—and they will not help your father. For God's sake, keep them from going further!"

Her color deepened, and for an instant, he thought he saw full belief in him growing in her eyes, but if she could not accept the charge against him neither could she consciously deny it, and the hands she had been pressing together suddenly dropped. "I'm afraid nothing I could say would have much effect on them knowing as little about—about you as I do."

They dashed the door open then—silenced and overwhelmed him; and they took her from the room and left him alone again. But there was something left with him which they could not take away; for in the moment he had stood alone with her and passionately pleading something had passed between them—he could give no name to it but he knew that Harriet Santoline never, could think of him again without a shiver of her pulses which drew her toward him.

The following morning the relieving snowplows arrived from the East and Eaton felt it was the beginning of the end for him. He watched from his window men struggling in the snow about the forward end of the train; then the train moved forward past the shovel and tramped snow where rock and pieces of the snowplow were piled beside the track—stopped waited, finally it went on again and began to take up its steady progress.

The attack upon Santoline having taken place in Montana, Eaton thought that he would be turned over to the police somewhere within that state, and he expected it would be done at the first stop; but when the train slowed at Strouds he saw the town was nothing more than a little hamlet beside a side-track. They surely could not deliver him to the village authorities here.

By the time the train stopped

Tornadoes Will Meet Smilers on Saturday; May Be Final Clash

Coker Independent Eleven Prepared to Give Best Effort.

CONTEST CALLED AT 3.15

The Connellsville Tornadoes will play the Pleasant Valley Smilers here on Saturday afternoon. The game may be the final one of the season and with an attraction like the Smilers here, the greatest crowd which has witnessed any home independent game is expected to be present. The Smilers are known throughout Western Pennsylvania as a strong grid outfit and in a recent game with Brownsville, gave the champions of the county championship a stiff run for honors.

Casper Jones' boys are prepared to "knock off" the Smilers by a larger score than did Brownsville. The team is still practicing faithfully and practically no serious injuries were received in the game with Doran's Bulldogs here last Saturday.

The Cokers had hoped to bring the best team in the Pittsburgh district here this week-end but the Smilers will prove to be an attraction plenty good enough. The visitors will make the Tornadoes extend themselves to the limit.

At Brownsville the Pleasant Valley team held the much-outed Independents to such a score as 6-0, Connellsville demonstrated its superior strength once before this year by handing Charleroi a more decisive beating than did Brownsville and it is felt that if the same thing can be done to the Smilers, a dampening effect will be spread over the river town's moanings that the Cokers are afraid to mix it with them.

Connellsville High School's girl basketball team is getting ready for another floor season. Coach Anne Mellon has been consistently turning out winners and with the material on hand this year is not likely to be any exception. There are some veterans back and the most likely substitutes from last season are in line for regular berths this year.

Informal talks between managers of the various teams have indicated that practically all the outfits which will go to make up the City League this year are ready to go on the floor although no session for the organization of the clubs has yet been held. The boys on the league teams are anxious to get into action, especially since the nights have become chilly.

George Seaton, of the Unity Fraternity, says he will be out for the center position this year despite some severe jolts he received while playing football for the Hilltops.

The High School basketball team will play their first game just one week from today, a Pittsburgh team being the attraction. The Cokers are getting ready for the coming season and the early games are merely to get the outfit better acquainted with its work.

With the prospect of seeing no more football games in Connellsville for another year, every fan will be out Saturday to witness the Tornado-Smilers game at Fayette Field. The Smilers had been scheduled for last Saturday but were held off until this week because of the battered condition of the locals following the Thanksgiving Day clash at Scottdale.

All Princeton students have quit taking baths. They would rather skate. That's the reason. The university is already using all its quota of the town's low water supply and the new Hobby Baker Memorial Rink needs 150,000 gallons before any hockey can start. Every Princeton man got this notice today: "Economize on water in the showers as your saving will be given the rink for making ice; cooperation appreciated." And each son of "Old Nassau" is doing his bit.

JUDGE LANDIS ARGUES GOLF CASE

Former Federal Judge K. M. Landis lost one of the few debates of his career when he clashed with Frank Bacon over a point on the golf links. The two veterans, with Ralph Morgan and Chick Evans, were playing an interesting foursome on the Edgewater Golf club course, Chicago, a few days ago when the argument took place. The photograph shows Evans, Morgan, Landis and Bacon.

Extra Seats Needed.

The heavy attendance at the world's series baseball games is sometimes puzzling to those who do not observe the situation closely. They overlook the tickets that may be counted a year before the event. For instance, there are the 1,933 fans who were of baseball for life when Judge Landis suspended Babe Ruth the last time. Added to the 1,250 who said they would never go to another game because the suspension was not serious enough, there insured a heavy demand for box seats. They arrived at the first game soon after the gates opened, but they found ahead of them the 5,000 disgusted patrons who swore last year that they knew the series was fixed. Just behind these sat the 5,000 others who had argued the question with them as they fought their way going home on the cars.

In the less expensive seats at the first game were 10,000 fans from other big league cities who were so sure when their own clubs did not win pennants that they said they would never spend another dollar on baseball. Scattered through the stands were 35,000 home-town fans who last July asked high heaven to witness that their team was the worst collection of ivory-headed bushers ever assembled, and asked Providence to strike them dead if they ever attended another game.—The Saturday Evening Post.

VACHE IS NO YOUNGSTER

Big Outfielder Bought by St. Louis Browns is Smart Ball Player, but No Spring Chicken.

Commenting on Ernest Vache, the outfielder with Charleston the past season and bought by the St. Louis Browns for a trial in the spring, a Charleston critic writes: "He is a pile driver at bat; in the outfield fast for a big fellow, smart and knows how to shift for outers." It doesn't seem that much else could be said in favor of a ball player, except that "he is young and ambitious." Vache may have the ambition, but he is no spring chicken.

Seats are of generous proportions with deep springs to give lasting comfort. The upholstery is of mohair velvet plush, as durable as it is attractive. The heater will give warmth and comfort on cold days.

The Light-Six has proved its reliability on the highways of the world. The ample power, quietness and remarkable flexibility of its motor are a source of continuous satisfaction. It is easy to handle in traffic. Constant gear shifting is unnecessary because it throttles down to a walking pace in high gear. Vibration, which is so annoying in closed cars, is virtually eliminated.

The low price is due to complete manufacture by Studebaker in one of the most modern and complete automobile plants in the world. Middlemen's profits are eliminated and the savings are passed on to the buyer.

The name Studebaker stands for comfort, quality and durability.

WOOD SEPARATOR STORAGE BATTERY

Cheer Up! Here's One GOOD Low-Priced Battery

Sim Heckle says his wife ought to be saving money. Bobbed hair—less grief with the hairdresser! Short skirts—less cloth to pay for!

But where Sim gets bumped is in the extra bills for silk stockings and little hats. Some of the short-skirt, bobbed-hair batteries we've met up with are just about as saving as Sim's wife! Big economy on the surface—big expense in the long run.

The CW Battery (Wood Separator) is a battery that wears a calico dress and old fashioned cotton stockings. But you can take our word for it—the value's there! Sizes for all cars; and we stand back of every one we sell.

THE SOISSON.

"FOOLISH WIVES," the super-picture, closes tonight a three-day showing at the Soisson Theatre. It is reported to be the first real million-dollar picture. Its actual cost up to the time of its first showing was $1,100,000. This stupendous sum was expended in the construction of gigantic and costly sets and in the hiring of thousands of "extra" actors and actresses to make up the crowd scenes. Erich von Stroheim, the author, director and principal actor in the picture, prided himself upon reproducing at Universal City, Cal., the exact scenes and activities to be found at Monte Carlo. Forty-eight real plate glass windows, each 12 feet high and four feet wide, were used in one of the costly buildings constructed for the filming of "Foolish Wives." The glass was used in the front of the set duplicating the celebrated Cafe de Paris at Monte Carlo. This directorial whim for absolute realism cost Universal $12,000.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"MARRIED PEOPLE," Hugo Ballin's latest production, comes to the Paramount Theatre today for an engagement of two days beginning this afternoon. The story of "Married People" is the one that was written by a little Chicago stenographer who won the Chicago Herald $1,000 prize scenario contest. "Married People" is the story of a frivolous, young wife and an enterprising young husband whose married happiness is threatened. At last, however, there occurs an incident that awakens the mother instinct in the young wife and the clouds are once more rolled away. You'll enjoy every minute of this picture, and we know you'll thank us for calling your attention to it.

THE ORPHEUM.

"MORAN OF THE LADY LETTY," is one of the strongest sea stories ever screened, a Paramount pictureization of Frank Norris' famous novel, which is being showed to delighted audiences at the Orpheum Theatre today. Dorothy Dalton is the featured player in this excellent George Melford production, while the leading man is Rudolph Valentino. The leading characters of this powerful picture are strikingly portrayed by these clever artists. Moran is a girl of the sea, and in physical strength, courage and the ability to fight is decidedly masculine. But when she is conquered by a desperate fight by Ramon, he becomes her idol. Other characters are splendidly interpreted by Walter Long, who plays one of the meanest villains of his screen career as villain. Charles Brindley, Emil Jorgensen, Maude Wayne, Cecil Holland and George Kuwa. Thursday, May McAvoy in "The Homespun Vamp."

INTERESTING SPORT NOTES

Business is dull. Miller Huggins hasn't been fired for a week.

Poland will enter the soccer competition at the Paris 1924 Olympics.

Dartmouth and Pennsylvania nines will play at Atlanta April 2 and 3 next.

Syracuse university admits boys under sixteen years of age free to its football games.

George Outshaw is likely to be seen playing next base for the Vernon Tigers second season.

The race track houb won't keep warm this winter on the hot tips he played last summer.

William H. Claffin of Boston was appointed hockey coach at Harvard for the fourth season.

Toronto barred the rumored Willis Dempsey, latouff, which almost makes it unanimous.

The Browns are carefully nursing a young prospect named Cedric Durst. Name sounds too cute for baseball—he must be intended for the movies.

California has a college of baseball for young Americans, and next year we may hear that some one out there has opened a swimming school for fish.

Pancho Villa, the Filipino boxer and holder of the flyweight title, has shown in his recent bouts that he is one of the speediest champs who ever pulled on a glove.

Pitcher Mike Pendergrast, former Philly player, has been reinstated. Pendergrast was suspended for playing with illegibles. He will be returned to the Philly reserve list.

Walter Math, the big southpaw who helped the Indians win the American league pennant and the world championship in 1920, will not appear with the tribe next season.

They seem to be presuming in the Eastern league that Chief Bender is done with the Reading International, for he is being mentioned as successor to Billy Gilbert at Waterbury.

Baseball rumors may be laughed at, but they often develop into facts. Take, for instance, the sale of Heinie Groh to the Giants. For eight years that sale was announced each winter—and was laughed to sleep—but in the ninth year it happened, didn't it?

Coals of Kentucky And Development

The coals of eastern Kentucky, when mixed with the proper proportion of low-volatile coal, are peculiarly suited to the manufacture of by-product coke. states the Bureau of Mines, in Technical Paper 308, just issued. An investigation made by the engineers of the United States Fuel Administration showed that, in 1917, 87 per cent of the northwest Kentucky production, 52 per cent of the Hazard production, and 44 per cent of the production of southeast Kentucky was suitable for making such coke.

Largely as a result of the expansion of the by-product coke industry, the production of coal in eastern Kentucky has grown by leaps and bounds. In fact, the field has developed more rapidly than any other major field. The average output for 1916-1920 was more than 13 times as great as the average for 1890-1900, whereas the growth in bituminous output as a whole during the same period was less than fourfold. One consequence of this extraordinary growth has been a development of mine capacity far in excess of the ability of the railroads to transport, so that eastern Kentucky is the scene of chronic transportation difficulties whenever the demand for coal is active. Like the eastern interior region as a whole, of which it forms a part, the western Kentucky field produces railroad fuel chiefly, states the Bureau of Mines, in a recently issued paper on Kentucky coals. Thirty to 35 per cent of the entire output of the district being used by the railroads, a proportion somewhat above that for all bituminous coal mines in the United States. Little coal from west Kentucky is sold for the manufacture of gas, although about 12 per cent of it is taken by electric light and power companies. The district produces also a lump coal that finds a wide market for domestic use, and about one-fourth of the output is shipped to retail dealers. A little coking coal is produced.

News of Dunbar

DUNBAR, Dec. 6.—Thanksgiving Day brought the usual number of visitors from various points back to Dunbar for the home enjoyment of that annual event. Among visitors may be noted Mr. and Mrs. Ray Goodwin and son, of near Wheeling. Mrs. Goodwin was formerly Miss Eleanor Senior of Dunbar. Harry Senior of the same place, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fair and family of Morgantown, W. Va. Mrs. Fair was formerly Miss Gertrude Ketter of Pittsburgh, a freshman at Pitt. Dr. C. Eason and daughter Catherine of Washington, Pa., where Mrs. Catherine is attending high school.

Delmar and Edward Wortman and Miss Helen Ketter planned and executed a perfect surprise party at the home of the Wortmans, the old Senior home, for Harry Senior last Friday night. Games of various kinds were played and sweets that were fine, from "hips red as wine" were gathered and enjoyed. It was past the midnight hour before the company thought of going home.

Supervisor F. C. Smith is completing extensive improvements on the Tucker Run-Ontopple road outward past Hingles school. He has widened the road, relieved from imminent danger of being destroyed with every high water, and has put in a bed of stone that will last for years to come. The mountain people of Dunbar township have reason to congratulate themselves on their good fortune.

Richard M. Ketter, who has been ill with quinsy for the past week, is rapidly convalescing and expects to be out soon.

D. J. Provance, Sr., is very seriously ill with asthma and is showing little if any improvement.

Supervisor Fred C. Smith purchased a fine rifle from D. J. Provance Thursday, and expects to go east deer hunting next week.

Blaine Provance held a shooting match in "Owl Hollow" Thanksgiving

Day, and enabled the local marksmen to display their skill with the rifle. Quite a number of contests were given, but more of the shots were not centers.

R. B. Browne, Jr., formerly superintendent of the mines of the United Refractories Company at Ferguson, but now in charge of a large lumber plant in West Virginia, was in Dunbar last week-end seeking choppers for his lumber development.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forman, newlyweds, have got settled in their home on Fayette street and were favored with a large number of callers who congratulated them. They attended the evening and the congregation had the pleasure of meeting the bride, who will become an active member of the church, her husband being one of the most active members thereof.

Mrs. Orville Thorpe and sons, Ferguson, were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Owy of Mount Independence Monday.

Mrs. R. J. McGee of Franklin road is serving on the grand jury this week and Mrs. Peter Johnson is serving on the petit jury. This gives both the township and the borough female representation in court.

Alverton

ALVERTON, Dec. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred DePriest and daughter, Lily Maud, of Mount Pleasant, were visiting the former's mother, Mrs. James DePriest on Sunday.

Rev. Anna Edwards was in Pittsburgh Saturday.
